Letter from the Editor

Holly Lenz

The weather is warm, and the horses have shed the last of their shaggy coats. Satin finally looks presentable. She spends much of the winter orange since she enjoys rolling in the Redland mud and doesn't get bathed when the weather is cold. This year she stayed cleaner and shedded earlier with the help of a turnout blanket during the winter.

I have been bringing Brian out to the barn with me most weeks to ride Satin around the tree farm, while I walk along with our dogs. The dogs aren't very horse smart, but Satin knows them and does not mind. In fact, having their company keeps her calmer than she is when I ride her alone. How strange that this is the same horse that bolted and ran 3 miles down Redland Road when a pair of dogs came after her while I was leading her home from a riding lesson. Guess the horse is smart enough to know the difference.

June promises to be a very, very busy month for me, and I am sure I am not alone. The Regional Arabian show is just around the corner, and I have a booth there. Feel free to stop by and say hello.

The following week, I am off to Reno to visit family. My brother is leaving for Afghanistan, and this will be his last week at home before he leaves. I am also having a baby shower with my family while I am in town. I'll have another one with Brian's family in Portland in August. I already have a garage full of baby hand-me-downs and loaners, but there is always more stuff you need. Now if only I had a bigger house to put it in!

We looked at a house on three acres in Canby. It would be nice to finally get out to the country and live with my horse, but unfortunately we were unable to get the loan on this one. For now, I will continue to board Satin and drive back and forth to Redland. As far as space goes, guess we'll have to finally clean out the basement and move some things around.

Get out and ride, give your horse a hug, and, most important of all, have a wonderful summer!

Membership:

Welcome new and expired returning members in May:

Jennifer Boston, Natalie Duiker, Annette Esser, Bianca Chevalier, Steven Page, Lisa Scglione, Tayla Kuyl and Jade Grenland.

Reminder, if you are competing or hope to compete in the Regional Sporthorse show in August, you need to have a full AHA membership with competition card. This applies to handlers, riders, owners (at least one if multiple owners), trainers and coaches.

If you have any questions, call Sarah Asby at 503-887-2535 or email her at sdasby@comcast.net.

Volunteers Needed:

Volunteers will be needed to help with the AiM classic and Region IV Sporthorse championships in August. We will need help with scoring dressage tests, scribing dressage and sport horse in hand, working the gates, helping with jumps, awards, announcing, and picking up tests and results from the arenas.

The more volunteers, the less time each person needs to work and the smoother the show will run. Each member will be contacted to see if they are willing to help. Let's make this the "go to" show in Region IV.

Please contact Sarah Asby, 503-887-2535 or sdasby@comcast.net if you are willing to help.

Kathryn Marxen

AiM member Kathryn Marxen is the 2009 AHA Region IV adult scholarship recipient. Kathryn has been riding, training, and showing Arabians since the age of nine. Throughout her equine career, she has competed in many disciplines in the Arabian circuit, 4-H, and OHSET. Over the past four years, she has focused on training and showing her Arabian gelding, Truth or Dare, in dressage. In 2008, she earned her first regional title: Dressage First Level AATR Champion. Another of her favorite experiences has been breeding, raising, and training her four-year-old Arabian mare. She is also a volunteer puppy raiser for Guide Dogs for the Blind, currently raising her fifth puppy. Kathryn is very excited to have the opportunity to attend Colorado State University in the fall, to earn an undergraduate degree in Equine Science.

Thunder Hill Arabians News

Greetings from Thunder Hill. The first foal of the year is here. He is by Annapolis+, and out of Crystalaffire, the mare that was saved by the skilled surgeons and vet staff at OSU. Jon E B Ggood, is a bay colt with tons of charisma and TROT! He was supposed to be the second foal of the year, but Simplyiristible+/- aborted twin foals in February.

Leila IA, mother of the remarkable 2008 colt, Minneannapolis, a.k.a. Pretzel, is due on June 20th. We don't think she will last that long. She looks like a condominium! Not just one unit, the whole darn complex!

We have more news to report. In September, Jeff was T-boned by a driver making an illegal U-turn, right into his driver's side door. Currently, our own automobile personal injury insurance medical coverage has expired, and although it is the other driver's fault, they have yet to pay one thin dime on any of these medical bills (first the bail outs, then the executive bonuses, and now more good news.... Insurance is B-R-O-K-E-N!!!!!!)

Therefore, we are drastically reducing the asking price on all of our sale horses and our foals, yearling, and two-year-old horses in hopes that they will go to show homes and we can continue Jeff's medical care. All foals, as you know, are SHNPayback. All of our horses are Sweepstakes, and most have USEF Lifetime recordings. Further, if you should decide that you want a mare, and you would like to have her bred, we will include a 2009 to Annapolis+.

It's not the best economy to buy horses. We understand that. It's not the best economy for much of anything. But, we hope, and more importantly, PRAY that it will get better. We believe that there is a reason for everything. Right now the priority is Jeff's health.

Good luck to all of you as you continue with your breeding, training and showing through these troubling times and into the better times to follow,

God Bless, Janet Jones, In2horsesports@aol.com

Lisa Kolke

Half Arabian Gelding THIRTY AUGHT CYX+/- was Reserve Champion Second Level Open and Champion First Level Open at the Region 5 Sport Horse Championships at Donida Farms in Auburn. He was also the high scoring horse of the show with a 72.985%! Shown (left) with rider Jessica Wisdom of Equi-Librium.

Bandit Springs Update

The Bandit Springs Endurance ride is coming up faster than I'd like to admit! While AiM is no longer an official sponsor of the ride, there are still many AiM members coming to the ride to volunteer. I wanted to extend an official invitation to any AiM member and family members and any other friends that would like to come help out and check out an endurance ride. Here's some pertinent info:

- July 11-12 are the dates of the actual ride.
- We'll be up there in June for 7-10 days and then probably around July 5 on (I'm not planning on porta-potties until July 8th or so but if there were those wanting to come up before that and needed "facilities", I'll get them there sooner-you just have to let me know)
- Ride Camp is about 30 miles from Prineville off of Hwy 26 towards Mitchell
- There is no cell service after the end of the Ochoco reservoir.
- Bring your horse and toodle around some or ride the trail ride or the 30 mile ride and volunteer after or the other day.
- We'll have thank yous and food and beverages for volunteers (there will also be a food vendor on site and you can always bring your favorite camping food to make sure that you are always "topped up").
- Music around the fire (as long as we can have one-fire, that is) on Sat night.
- LMTs for horses and people (at your cost)
- Healthy as a Horse will be there as a vendor for fun purchasing opportunities
- Sunday is the AHA Region IV 50 mile endurance championship

We need pulsers (training available), vet scribes, finish line timers and general helpers. Let me know if you would like to come or have questions.

Smokin' Colt 45 by Janet Jones

Known as "JR" around the farm, Smokin' Colt 45 is the result of a very special breeding attempt to honor my "horse husband by default," Jeff, with a horse of his very own. We searched for a stallion to breed to my Anglo-Arabian mare, Simplyiristible+ (Abby), for some time before settling on a buckskin and white tovero paint stallion with AWS approval.

Jeff wanted a stocky horse that he could hopefully hunt from, and in spite of the stallion's 16+ hand, bulky frame, we thought that we would get a suitably "shorter" horse by breeding him to Abby, who stands 15.1. Jeff was also smitten by the "color" and the arrangements were made.

On April 5, 2000, a very large, very black, very cute, and very whimsical colt arrived just as I was preparing to head off to work. The dream of a spotted hunting pony vanquished, Jeff set about imprinting his new friend and dubbed him "Smokin' Colt 45, recognizing both the date and one of his favorite firearms.

As the years have passed and the friendship has grown, we have had many special moments with this now grey 16-hand gelding. JR follows Jeff step for step through the pasture while Jeff is changing irrigation pipes. On one occasion, as Jeff was walking in from the field late at night, deep in thought after setting pipe, he was startled from his thoughts by the cold, wet, rough tongue of JR, as he licked him right up the back of his neck. Jeff admits that it made him "scream like a girl," as he knew that JR was following him, but he never expected him to do that!

JR is always very helpful. One of his favorite things is helping Jeff with all of his farm duties. While cutting back and burning blackberries, Jeff set his still burning propane torch down briefly to cut some more bramble and stack it into another pile for burning. Upon turning back for his torch, Jeff was totally surprised to see his big grey gelding, torch wand between his teeth, waving the burning torch about like a baton twirler. How, you might ask, does one remove a lit torch from a horse that is waving it around? Jeff went around behind JR and turned the propane bottle off, and once the flame went out, the game was no longer interesting. It was at this point that he began walking through the remaining smoking piles looking for something else to amuse himself. JR was sequestered to his stall shortly thereafter.

To say that this horse has personality would be an understatement. He has been known to open the toolbox on the tractor if it is abandoned in the field for even the briefest of moments, steal all of the tools and dump them in a wide distribution around said tractor, and then step back with a concentrated look of innocence. One should not remove jackets or sweatshirts in the pasture while JR is about. This is grounds for a merry chase to retrieve your stolen apparel. No gate latch is truly secure if JR takes a notion to open it. The only thing we have found that truly delays him is a climbing style of clip that actually screws closed.

JR has injured himself and some of his stablemates on numerous occasions by way of his own curiosity, leading to allowing him to play with only a select group of horses for the safety of all. Our vet has even changed the name on all of records to "Dennis the Menace."

Once, he managed to injure his left hind leg pretty significantly by somehow getting it under the stud divider of our horse trailer. The stud divider, mind you, is only about 4-inches from the trailer floor. The injury required wrapping with a bulky dressing and placement of a standing wrap over the top. The cleaning and wrapping went on for days without a hitch. Then one day, I put a bright orange wrap on top of the dressing and went off to work. When I returned home that afternoon I was amazed to see that JR's artistic side had evolved. There on the rails of his pipe corral were tiny shreds of orange wrap, neatly hanging on the various levels in a random fashion. The cotton wrap, for the most part, was still attached to his hind leg. No sizeable pieces of the orange leg wrap were identifiable, only tiny slivers encircling his pipe corral like orange icicles.

We have discovered over the years that JR is a much better citizen when he has a job to do. He has become a trusted trail horse for Jeff, although his height makes it somewhat difficult for Jeff to get on an off out on the trail. He likes working cattle, and if given a chance, dogs or cats crossing his paddock work pretty nicely too. He pretends to be a dressage horse for me, even humbly availing himself to me for a pas de deux with granddaughter, Morgan and her grey gelding, Zhane (we won first place with a 68% at Training Level). But his forte, the thing he loves the most, is driving.

It has gotten to the point that we cannot back his gig out of the carport to get the riding mower out, without him standing at his gate calling to us. That two wheel cart and his harness make him the happiest horse on earth. He willingly stands for us to fumble and adjust and tweek and cloak him in his harness, and once hitched, he arches his neck and struts his stuff.

On one occasion, Jeff had parked several farm implements in our arena and after surveying the scenery, I thought that I could safely drive in and around them to get some practice with JR. We did okay, but I wasn't satisfied with the limited area to work in, so I drove him up to his corral, put a halter over his bridle and told him to stay there, stay hitched, and behave himself while I went to get the mares out of the pasture and clear us some real territory (I admit that this was probably not the smartest thing I have ever done, but you've got to understand that this horse LOVES this cart).

The pasture gate was opened, and the usually obedient and organized return to the stalls from the pasture was anything but. The mares had to check out the situation with JR, so they ran past him, snorting, whirling, and eventually returning to their stalls when the feed started hitting the pans. JR stood there, rock solid, the entire time waiting for me to return to him. Sounds amazing, but it is true. Once the halter was removed and he was backed up several steps, I went around to the back of the cart, stepped into the seat, and we spent about an hour just driving through the pasture and playing "obstacle driving" through the oak trees.

JR has become a wonderful family member, despite his lack of spots, despite his height, and despite the fact that he is only ¼ Arabian and doesn't really fit into our "program."

WANTED TO LEASE: My nine year old son has a very sweet, very green mare but he needs something he can ride NOW. He's not experienced enough to make his horse do what he wants yet. So I am looking for an older, experienced horse that is good with kids and goes on the trail. A care lease would be ideal or a horse looking for a retirement home...

I would prefer an Arab but am looking for the right horse for Spence. If you know of anything, let me know.
