Holly Lenz

Kaye emailed me the following note for the newsletter this month:

I got a phone call yesterday from Willamette Valley Equine. Seems that this client can't afford to keep his Arabian mare. He says that he won't abandon her nor send her to the auction, but he will have her put down if he can't find a good home for her. So they called Arabians in Motion to see if we could help. So it's a rescue thing. I have asked for more info on her registered name and/or pedigree, but no response yet. I'm off at the AiM show all weekend, but wanted to be sure to get this to you in time to go into the newsletter.

The horse, Rosy, is in the classified section of our newsletter. She sounds like a nice mare, just 7 years old. We have another free horse, Redfeather Dancin, who comes with a breeding to Aul Magic and Thunderhill Arabians is offering free breedings to their wonderful stallion Annapolis+.

Makes me wish I could afford to keep another horse, or two, or three. The sad thing is that with this economy, horses have become a lot harder to sell. There are still people buying and selling horses. My mom just bought a horse a couple weeks ago. But buyers are shopping with a lower budget and expecting more. It is a hard time to sell a horse, but a great time to buy one.

Unfortunately, this means there are a lot more rescue horses and less people to take them in. Many of these horses are nice horses that would have been worth a decent price a few years ago, but now their owners just need to find them a home. Keeping a horse is expensive, and the worse the economy gets, the worse the problem will become.

So what can we do? If you can afford it, fostering or adopting a horse is a wonderful option. For those, like me, whose budgets won't allow more horses, we can volunteer our time to rescues or donate money or items to them. We can also make sure our own horses have a good resale value, just in case, by training them and keeping them up on their riding. So many rescue horses are unbroke or very green!

We should take responsibility for our horses after they retire until they die. When it is the best option for them, we should put them down instead of passing them off to someone else. It breaks my heart to see people trying to sell horses in their late 20s and even older. These horses have earned their retirement, and when the time comes, they have earned a peaceful death with the people they have loved throughout their lives. We need to budget for our horses retirements ahead of time. Sometimes we are lucky enough to be able to use a horse until it dies, but we can't count on it.

Perhaps most important, we need to get more people interested in horses and specifically the Arabian horse. However we can promote our breed and our horses, now is the time! New riders need horses, so get your friends and relatives hooked. You can bring people riding with you, give riding lessons as gifts, and pass out old magazines and literature. Got more ideas? Share them with me at HollyLenz@aceweb.com. Happy trails!

Thunderhill Arabians

Jeff and I have been experiencing the roller coaster ride of this economy (mostly down...), and we are hoping that you can let folks know that we have several fantastic Sweepstakes Breeding Entry, SHNPayback mares that will be available for sale or breeding lease this year. We would also like to make our stallion, Annapolis+ more available for those who are also on the "down side" of the economy, but realize that "this too shall pass." That being said, we are offering "FREE" breedings to Annapolis+ for 2009. Contingencies include: Mare must have a show record. Booking fee of $300, collection and shipping fees and/or mare care for live cover, will be the responsibility of the mare owner. Mare must have a clean culture. Foals from 2009 breedings will automatically be SHNPayback nominated and are eligible for Sweepstakes nomination in utero at a reduced price. The economy may be in despair right now, but NOW is the perfect time to breed your next Champion!
